

Women in Revolution: From the Margins to the Centre

7:00-8:15PM, Thursday 4 June 2026

A webinar organized by the Virtual Record Treasury of Ireland in partnership with the Irish Historical Society, the Ulster Society for Irish Historical Studies, Mary Immaculate College, and the Trinity Long Room Hub Arts and Humanities Research Institute.

Programme:

- 7:00-7:45 Talks by Prof. Jane Ohlmeyer (TCD), Dr Catriona Kennedy (York), and Prof. Lindsey Earner-Byrne (TCD)
- 7:45-8:00 Panel Discussion chaired by Dr Joel Herman
- 8:00-8:15 Q&A with the Speakers

This webinar highlights the central role played by women in revolutions across time. Short papers by three leading historians will examine the revolutionary lives of women in the seventeenth century, the Age of Revolutions, and the twentieth-century Irish Revolution. A panel discussion and Q&A session will draw out continuities and discontinuities and allow critical connections to be made. 'Women in Revolution' is presented in connection with 'States of Independence: Ireland and the American Revolution 250 Years Later', a curated collection to be released on the Virtual Record Treasury of Ireland in June 2026. All are welcome and attendance is free, but registration is essential.

REGISTER HERE

Image Credit: Francis Wheatley 'The Dublin Volunteers on College Green' (1779) National Gallery of Ireland, Wikimedia Commons; Francis Wheatley, 'The Irish House of Commons' (1780), Lotherton Hall, Wikimedia Commons.

Irish Historical Society

Trinity Long Room Hub
Arts & Humanities Research Institute

